Labor Studies/B.A.

IMPORTANT MAJOR INFORMATION

The Labor Studies major offers UCLA undergraduates an opportunity to learn about the workplace and the social, political, and economic forces that influence it. The program places emphasis on the labor market, public policy, employment relations, unions, and working-class movements. It also explores issues of race, class, and gender in the workplace. By critically analyzing the theory and practice of current workplace issues, students develop a deeper understanding of the relationships between their education and society at large and how they, as college graduates, can transform the nature of work.

Listed below are the lower division preparation courses for the major. To be considered for this major, at minimum, students must complete the following: one course in interdisciplinary labor history or one social structure and contemporary conditions course related to labor and/or social movements with a letter grade. In addition, applicant must complete 60 semester units/ 90 transferable quarter units with a 3.2 gpa by the end of spring before transfer. If this course is not available, the department strongly recommends completion of IGETC or the General Education course pattern and applicants must express sincere interest in the major. For more information regarding this major and UCLA's transfer selection process, visit <https://irle.ucla.edu/labor-studies> and www.admission.ucla.edu.

PLEASE NOTE: the community college courses listed below have been approved to satisfy the preparation for this major at UCLA, but they may not be exact equivalents of the UCLA courses.
